

Conference Description

This conference will gather public health and legal experts from across the country to learn about and discuss today's critical challenges in public health law. Top experts will lead insightful sessions on a range of emerging issues from a variety of perspectives. Attendees will return home inspired and equipped to improve public health with legal solutions.

Conference Goals:

The goals of this conference are to:

- Examine practical legal approaches to address priority public health issues
- Learn about helpful public health law resources and evidence-based research
- Discuss public health legal questions and answers
- Build partnerships to accomplish public health objectives and foster innovation

Target Audience

- Local, state, tribal and federal public health officials and practitioners
- Attorneys
- Policy-makers
- Advocates
- Academics and researchers

Session Topics and Tracks

There will be several plenary sessions and concurrent sessions so that those interested in different topics and those with varying levels of expertise select the sessions that are most relevant to them. The agenda is not yet finalized, but topics may include:

Tentative Session Topics - Check back for the final agenda

- Public Health Law Year in Review
- Prevention and Promotion at the Community Level
- Changes and Challenges to Public Health Legal Infrastructure
- Challenges to Public Health Authority
- Skills Building/Competencies
- Protection and Security
- Data Collection, Use and Storage